CAPT. COLLINS' FUNERAL.

Notable Company of State Officials Attend Services.

A notable company of state officials, headed by Gov. Bates, attended the funeral yesterday forenoon of Capt. Joseph W. Collins, chairman of the Massachusetts fish and game commission at his residence, 9 Sparhawk street, Brighton. Rev. R. P. Walker, pastor of the Allston M. E. Church, conducted the service, and was assisted by Rev. J. E. Waterhouse of Winthrop, Rev. Jesse Wagner of Waltham and Rev. John E. Perry of the Brighton Avenue Baptist church, Brighton.

The coffin was nearly concealed by floral remembrances, the governor having sent a cluster of white roses and fern. There were also floral tributes from the fish and game commission, the Boston Wholesale Fish Dealers' Association, Commissioner Darling and 18 deputies of the fish and game commission, the Middlesex Sportsmen's Association of Arlington. The above-named organizations were represented by delegations at the services. The 18 deputies of the fish and game commission accompanied the body to this city on an early afternoon train and acted as the bearers from the railroad station to the grave in the family lot there.

Interment was at Oak Grove cemetery.

The New Fulton Fish Market.

Workmen are about removing from its present location the building occupied for so many years by the Fulton Fish Market at New York. The structure will be located temporarily on the next bulkhead north. In the meantime the southerly half of the new market will be erected. When that part has been completed, the dealers now occupying the old building will take possession of it, so that they will be relatively in their former positions. The northerly section will be taken by those dealers who are at present located in the neighboring stores; that is, if they are members of one of the three associations that will own the new building. These associations are The Fulton Fishmongers' Association, The Wholesale Fish Dealers' Association and The Independent Fish Dealers' Association. The city of New York owns all the dock property, and the title to the building will pass to the city at the expiration of thirty years. The plans for the new building have not yet been drawn, and no clear idea of its construction is at present obtainable, though it is believed it will be constructed chiefly of iron, and will be finished inside of two years.

SEINING IN LAKE CHAMPLAIN.

New York and Vermont Legislators To Confer with Canadian Officials.

For the purpose of reaching an agreement, if possible, with the Canadian authorities on the question of seine fishing in Lake Champlain, a special committee from the New York Legislature and a similar committee from the Vermont Legislature left last night for Quebec.

Both in this state and in New York there is a law prohibiting seine fishing in Lake Champlain and the waters tributary thereto. The law is rigidly enforced by both States, but in Canada fishermen are not forbidden to fish in that portion of the lake which enters their country. This, in the opinion of the New York and Vermont legislators, works an injustice to the American fishermen, and an endeavor will be made to have the rights and privileges of the American and Canadian fishermen equalized.

Whales on Their Holidays.

Professor Goldlob has been telling the Christiania Academy of Science the results of his investigations into the migrations of whales. These creatures hang about the coast of Norway and Finland until the spring is well advanced, and then they go away on their travels. Some go to the Azores, others to Bermuda and the Antilles, and they cover these enormous distances in an incredibly short time. Some of them bring back harpoons which bear the names of ships and other evidences of where these migrants have been for their summer holidays.

Sch. Georgie Campbell Brings Another Salt Herring Fare.

Sch. Georgie Campbell, Capt. Wilson Cahoon, arrived this morning from Bay of Islands, N. F., with a full fare of salt herring. This is the second Newfoundland salt herring trip which the Campbell has made this season, Capt. Cahoon being the third skipper this year to make this record.

Capt. Cahoon reports a very rough passage home. The vessel encountered two heavy easterly gales with heavy snow between Canso and Cape Sable and was forced to run under a foresail, and from the Cape across to this port, they had head winds about all the time.

Fishing Notes.

All the local fishermen were in luck yesterday. Capt. Webster, who was high line, brought in 300 pounds of fish, and the catches ranged from 50 pounds up to 300 pounds.

A. Bav View, Capt. Alex, Sargent, brought in, in his dory, 100 pounds of cod and haddock and four barrels of herring.

Mr. Herbert Knowlton has opened his office at Lane's Cove for buying fish from the local fishermen. The fish are weighed and bought here, and carried to his place in Pigeon Cove to be dressed.

Herring Scarce at Placentia Bay.

Herring are scarce in Placentia Bay, and the fishery promises badly. At Sound Island only a few barrels have been taken, and only a few vessels are in the bay.—St. John's N. F., Herald.

Herring Plentiful, No Frost.

Recent advices from Bay of Islands state that there were plenty of herring and no frost.

SAILOR AND STUDENT.

Two Thrilling Adventures of Capt. J. W. Collins.

Honored by Governments for His Researches into Fish Life.

BY WINTHROP PACKARD.

"Brave are the hearts that man
The fishing boats of Gloucester,
The sea boats of Cape Ann."

Thus sang Edmund Clarence Stedman, and never was truer word spoken, as we men of Massachusetts who have gone down to the sea in our ships know full well. Of such men was Capt. Joseph W. Collins whose death last Saturday robbed the Massachusetts Fish and Game Commission of its honored head. Capt. Collins had held many positions of honor and responsibility at home, he had received medals and decorations from abroad, yet I verily believe the deeds in which he took most delight, both in the doing and the recalling, were those of the period when he sailed with the fishermen out of Gloucester. A sturdy man was the captain. Of medium height, with a clean shaven upper lip, a bushy beard, and eyes that had something of the owl depths of the sea in them. He was not given to boasting of his exploits, yet if you could catch him in the hour of leisure and the mood of reminiscence he could a tale unfold that would match those of Clark Russell or Jack London, or Connolly, and a true one at that.

Some of these stories I know, but before I begin to tell them I wish to say a word more about the captain. His keynote was thoroughness. He did nothing by halves and he seemed always prep red. When he was appointed in 1899 the Fish and Game Commission had no headquarters. Communications for it went to the private address of one of its members. "I am no believer in a vest pocket commission," said the captain, and he was not long in convincing the authorities at the State House that the commission needed a room for its headquarters. Sportsmen were a little afraid at first that his devotion to fisheries and fish culture would make the new headquarters of the welfare of game birds and animals, but they soon found out that he knew the ruffed grouse and the rabbit as well as the salmon and alewives. He was prepared.
